

RECENT OPERATIONS

By Paul Rardin

Congratulations are in order. The railroad crossing near the Pahokee cannery plant has been rebuilt and is now as good as the average railroad crossing in this section. A crew of workmen completed the work on Wednesday of this week.

With over five inches of rainfall last week during the time high winds were whipping this section I haven't heard a farmer say a word in the past few days about it. I still think though that the rains that have fallen this week have the ground just a bit too damp in spots for plowing or planting.

I've decided I won't plant any cabbage this season. According to my figures and the averages I have figured out, cabbage will not do on a rampage and any crop of 1932. Maybe I'll plant some this year. I still think though that the rains have planted some last season. Maybe if I don't plant any this year the price will sky-rocket again.

Lois Betzner in Belle Glade Tuesday showed me some Everglades land she had been scratching my head for a name for before she saved me. Further mental gymnastics explained what the thing was. To me it looked like a cross between a windmill and an outgrowth but Lois pointed that it was merely the power plant for a new battery house he had just erected. I've seen a lot of that kind of thing in my time but that is as clever a little trick as you'll find. It looks like a simple power plant (a little plant) and the generator or flywheel all geared up together. You're all set to manufacture enough juice to keep your radio in tune for the happenings in London, Madrid, London, Paris or Oshkosh.

And speaking of radios—a lot of folks were under the impression, on Tuesday morning of this week, that Senator H. W. Long offered the great divide of the Everglades News inside a bulletin titled of the Senator's death. The bulletin was posted in the office of the Pahokee and Belle Glade. (Towns served by the Everglades News) shortly after the news was received of his death. The Everglades News is indebted to The Palm Beach Post for confirmation of the report received by this newspaper.

During the past month or so the Tampa Tribune has been making use of its new air conditioned office, editors of the state have been making cracks about the Tribune and their air cooled working quarters. I wouldn't say that our office is exactly as hot as anything like that but last December 12th and 13th the temperature was in the high 90's in this place of business and it will ever get any hotter. Tribune plant. In fact the air was so hot that the temperature rose to a degree that necessitated the installation of a couple of charcoal pots. By the way, you don't know where I can buy one of these things real cheap, do you?

I see by a recent news dispatch that Wausau is to have a new liquor distillery. I hope they have made arrangements to give their customers the proper color without the use of old chips. Boca Ciega, a scorched brown sugar. First those Haulover county folks breaking the news with a flourish from the north where any bull frog in California and now they will probably make liquor with the same old where else.

Have you noticed that string of Royal Palms between Canal Point and Pahokee? They're little now but they'll grow. Through the cooperation of Prof. Spence and the Rotary club the project is being financed. Will you help protect them?

Canal Point School Ready To Open Monday

New Storm-Proof Building To Be Occupied This Year

It is with pleasure that the children of Canal Point can look forward to the opening of school Monday, Sept. 16th at 8:30 a. m., since they will have a new storm-proof school building to be ready for occupancy. The children and faculty have anticipated this new school building with much interest. The faculty feels that much more is going to be accomplished this year because of the newly improved facilities of the school. A real addition to the school is a regular reading and library room. It is hoped that through the cooperation of the parents new money may be added to the library. There will also be a home hygiene class room equipped to carry on the work which Miss Howell, the county nurse, plans to do.

For the first time for the four Everglades schools, (Canal Point, Pahokee, Belle Glade, South) there are to have a public school music. Miss Branning, who is to be the director of music, is going to use the Hollis Dunn music to be also plans to have a music appreciation period. It is expected that many will be interested in such a course. Miss Walker, of Pahokee, will give private piano lessons to those interested. She will leave their names at the principal's office.

Parents who sponsor the school lunch room. It is anticipated that an expert dietitian may be hired to prepare the lunch. Meals may be available at the lowest prices. Applicants who will file their applications by Monday, p. m., with the P. T. A. president, J. Jones.

Parents are entering children in the first grade are reminded that the child must be six years of age by Dec. 15, 1935, and must be vaccinated for anti-polio and have had the typhoid inoculation. Consistent with the system from other schools, certificate of promotion must be given to the child. The certificate must be taken for the grade they wish to enter.

Parents are urged to bear in mind that this arrangement, the county two weeks before the child enters school. This is a ruling of the State Board of Education. It is to be adhered to strictly, for the protection of the children of the community. The prevention of being taken to prevent the spread of contagious disease from other children.

Through the efforts of the local board member, A. Q. Howell, and Superintendent Joe A. Youngblood, the school is to have a new assistant in the Junior department and permit library service, and give books to the children of each a home room. This arrangement will make it possible for the school to have a supervisory work and attend to the needs of the children.

If pupils and parents cooperate by turning in texts used in previous years, they will be sufficient for the county. The few copies of the county are to be given to the county. These books are supplied free to residents and taxpayers. The law does not require the furnishing of free books to children of the families, but if the right manner of pupils is received from the parents, the school will be able to furnish enough books to enable furnishing texts to such children. It will be noted that the state does not require furnishing of supplementary textbooks, such as work books and notebooks. These books are supplied free to supplementary readers from year to year. These latter are supplementary readers for some of the grades, which will mean a material addition to the parents of the Canal Point school.

Grade one is required to secure two supplementary readers; while grades two through six are required to purchase three supplementary readers. Work books, notebooks and notebooks are required in all grades and are not furnished by the state or by the school. These latter will make a heavy burden on the parents when the parents fail to purchase this material for their children.

The able corps of teachers of the Canal Point school is composed of the following: First grade, Mrs. W. M. Jeffers; Second grade, Gertrude Paul.

CREECH SEES TOO MUCH PLANTING THIS YEAR

L. T. Creech, of Belle Glade, is a half-minute opinion of the Sunshine Station in West Palm Beach the other day had the following to say about planting in the Glades area this season: "From the outlook now, I would say the Glades will be overplanted this coming winter. The farmers laid aside 40,000 bushels of seed cabbage to be planted in the Glades. The little fellow who is planning to plant, some may have an idea that the farmers will plant cabbage because of the bit more planted last season, but this isn't the case. Fact is, those who did plant cabbage in large quantities last winter didn't exercise the best of judgment. They got a lucky break when the Texas cabbage was frozen out. So I do not expect them to go very heavy on cabbage this year."

Also, in recent years it has been urged that the diversification of crops is necessary for the health of the pocketbook. Home Ground Seed And Cabbage Price Are Stimulants

That there will be more acreage planted in the Lake Okechobee region this year than ever before is an undisputed fact, according to section. The high price of cabbage this season is one of the main factors causing many acres of cabbage to be planted for this year's crop and another fact that is going to boost the acreage is that thousands of bushels of home grown bean seed are available. Last season's farming activities in the Lake region brought profitable results to most everyone concerned and again this year a large part of the profits will be put back into the soil. Much new equipment has been bought by those who cashed in on last year's farming. Additional equipment, such as tractors, has been bought. The "possible" chance of high prices, all combined will bring one of the richest seasons for this section has ever known.

Planting this season will be later than last year on account of the fact that rainfall has been less. Last year on September first average of 1.5 inches of rain fell, already in this particular time it is doubtful if as many acres are planted as were on September first last year.

During last week, while high winds were whipping this section, five and one-half inches of rain fell. The total rainfall thus far this season is about equal to what has fallen in this section in fully two weeks or more behind the schedule followed last year.

It is expected that the planting in Glades farming to a certain extent this year. In the past growth of the section has been effected, more or less, on one crop. The reason for the consensus of opinion among growers and brokers is that a large variety of vegetables will be grown. "Pepper, egg plant, squash, potatoes, and various other vegetables will come in their share of acreage this year. That diversification is a profitable trade is undisputed by the growers.
